Public Energy Performing Arts is seeking Peterborough/Nogojiwanong area performing artists to apply for our Alternating Currents 2024 performance mentorship program.

Public Energy encourages submissions from all socio-cultural backgrounds, including BIPOC, people with disabilities, across generations, from the LGBTQ2+ community, and newcomers to Canada.

Alternating Currents (AC) is an intensive workshop process managed by Public Energy Performing Arts, open to artists working in theatre, dance, circus and multi-disciplinary performance. AC is intended to benefit artists (either individuals or a group of artists working as collaborators) who value research and development as a long-term process and who need to see the work 'on its feet'. The workshops will be led by professional mentor/dramaturges, experienced in creation techniques that include dance, devised theatre and collaborative creation. It will take place in the first two weeks of January, 2025.

Alternating Currents will provide each successful submission with:

- A series of one-on-one mentor workshop sessions.
- Technical and administrative support.
- Artists' fees for the lead artist and a limited number of performers.
- A presentation of the work-in-progress (artists can choose to opt out) to an invited audience.

2024 Mentors have not been confirmed. Once the mentors are confirmed, participating artists will be consulted to match them with a mentor. The Program Director for Alternating Currents is Kate Story, who will also act as one of the Mentors.

How participants are selected:

Participants in Alternating Currents will be chosen by a selection committee. The selection process will take into account the performance history of the artists (quality of work, ability to see work to completion, professional artistic activity), the artistic needs of the work, and whether it would benefit from the support offered by the AC program. We are particularly interested in projects which experiment with forms of creation and performance characterized by one or more of the following:

- Works beginning in places other than text (movement, images, objects, research, improvisation, etc.)
- Exploring poetic or stylized text
- Integration of multidisciplinary elements such as sound, movement, technology and text
- A spirit of artistic inquiry

Performance works that are already in development or have already been workshopped are eligible. Your work must be ready to be workshopped with performers. The work can be a solo performed by the artist/creator.

All AC workshops will take place at The Theatre On King, so must be workable in the setting of a small black box theatre.

The successful applicants will be included in a funding application to the Ontario Arts Council. Please note that the project will not be carried out if the OAC funding application is not approved. This notification comes in late November/early December.

What to send us:

1. A ½ page (max) cover letter introducing yourself or your group and why your work is a good fit with the program.

History of Alternating Currents: In 2008 and 2009 Public Energy Performing Arts produced its first Alternating Currents programs. Experimental theatrical works-in-progress by regional artists received 3-5 days each of intensive workshopping with award-winning director and theatre artist Ker Wells. The program was reinstated in 2017, with a more multidisciplinary mandate (dance, circus, movement-based works as well as theatre works). Kate Story is the Program Director and also acts as a mentor for a portion of the projects. The process culminates in an informal presentation to an invited audience. For Public Energy, Alternating Currents is part of our ongoing commitment to supporting the creation of original works of performance, and the development of local artists. A history of past participants can be found on our website.
